

Acknowledgements

We wish to thank the following individuals for their invaluable contributions to the development of this text:

Adam Buchwald, Professor in the Department of Communicative Sciences at New York University, for his seminal contribution to our chapter on Aphasia

Amy Dougherty, Clinical Supervisor, Long Island University, for sharing her knowledge and valuable insights about the use of Assistive Communication Devices in Aphasia

Erica Pedersen, Graduate student in Speech Pathology at New York University, for designing the management plan templates

We also thank:

Christina Reuterskiöld chair of the Department of Communicative Sciences and Disorders and Alicia Morrison, chief supervisor, for their input and encouragement throughout the process of writing this book.

Our students in the management planning course at New York University, whose curiosity and dedication provided motivation and positive reinforcement for this endeavor

Dedications

Harriet Klein:

In memory of my husband Milton I. Klein, “the wind beneath my wings”.

Nelson Moses:

Jordan and Cameron, for providing the emotional foundation for this and all of my endeavors